organization committed to supporting the arts in education. She is promoting this year's school theme of stewardship, a concept Ellis readily embraces. "It's important that we set a positive example for our children," she explains. "If children see us acting as good stewards of all that life has blessed us with, getting involved and giving back to the community will become second nature to them. We all have something to give," she reminds us.

The firm has been serving the South Florida community for more than ten years as the premier personal injury and wrongful death law firm. As a result of the growing needs of their clients, they now offer comprehensive legal service in the areas of immigration, class action lawsuits, real estate, business law and estate planning. After seven years of providing dedicated legal representation to clients of Ellis & Ged, Carlos A. Bodden was added as partner. The firm has grown to fifty-five employees who are as diverse as the population
